Richell Expandable Crate is perfect for young and Older Basenji's that need to stay in a crate for an extending time. There is room enough for a Richell Pay Trax Mesh Training tray, water bowl and bed and even a toy or 2. You will need to get the top also since Basenji's are escape artists. The medium is the better choice.

This can be purchased at various places including, Petco, Bed & Bath, Amazon etc.

Medium size nylabone is a good item to leave for them in their crate

This is the food I use for my adult.

Every Morning 1 large biscuit after going out. Any brand works. I buy them Kirkland in Costco

I add only 4 bites of these to the Pro Plan it helps keep their teeth clean

These are a good chew option. Do not overdue or you will have a fat dog!!!

I add this to the water to help keep the teeth clean

These are a good training treat since they are small and easy to be kept in your pocket. It is a good idea to keep a couple when walking

so if you need to get their attention

I like to give a greenie or something similar a couple of times a week.

X-Large, I like this one for the floor and this would be good to put in the crate for a bed.

Leopard Fur Igloo

I like this because I do not like my dogs on my bed touching the blanket and sheets. Also if you need to move them it is very easy to just pick them up and move them. There are cheaper options but this is washable and lasts. There is a pad that comes out. I have bought a cheaper one at home goods and it did not last. Mr. Wags Pet Boutique www.mrwags.com 865-386-3141 (tell them Mary sent you the Basenji Lady. She has seen the picture of Kholiwe and Scarlet together) you need the larger size one.

Large (18" x 21") up to 15 lbs $108

CollarDirect Rolled Leather Dog Collar. I prefer a rolled leather collar since it doesn't damage the fur and if they get caught the collar should break before their neck.

Max & Neo Dog Gear Nylon Reflective Martingale Dog Collar with Chain. Small 12 to 14.5 size. This is good for walking. You leave the other collar on and then put this on and attach the lead to this one. This way you have better control. It only tightens if they pull. I do not believe in harnesses!!!!

You also want to make sure to get a double sided tag that you can get made at any petco or petsmart Make sure your adress is on one side and phone and the name on the other. You can even put the Home Again number on it.

Leashes are a personal thing and it depends on what you are using it for. I like having different leashes for different things. A short 4ft. is good for having control. For use when at the vet or using it in the bath/shower for bath time. A 6ft is a standard size and can be purchased in nylon or leather. The slip lead I find useful for quick need, so I just slip it over the head and slid the keep down so it can't slip off. A retractable are good for those park walks where you can give them more rope. Also carry a extra in the car you don't know when you will need it.

Dremel 7300-PT Dog & Cat Nail Grinder Kit I find this the best and easiest to use. It is chargeable and priced around $25.00 You dog will have had this used on them and should behave. If you do this every week or so it should be any easy thing to keep up with. Do not let you dogs nails get long. They can scratch your floors, furniture and you. Additionally, they can get a nail caught and that can be painful and cause a vet visit. DO NOT BUY A GRINDER WITH A HOOD! A NAIL CAN GET CAUGHT IN THESE.

A crate that folds is good for the car or home. They come in different door configurations depending on where you are putting it 24x18x19 works well for a basenji some are a little taller Some boys are on the bigger size so if your getting a puppy that is a boy you might want to consider what is called a 300 size.

Some people prefer a plastic kennel these are not good to be left in the home because some dogs will chew the plastic. I find they are good for leaving in the car. But in general I prefer the metal collapsible ones because they can't chew them and a standard 24 inch crate pad fits nicely. The metal ones fold down easily.

Ok you may think this is crazy but you do not want a water bowl unless it is secure. Anything with rubber "non-skid" or plastic is not a good idea. A bored dog/puppy might chew it. Either attach something to the side of the crate or a ceramic bowl works well.

something like this works well for food. I always feed my dogs in their crate with the door shut. You do not want the dog to get in the habit of becoming a grazer. If you have to leave the dog with someone, have a visiting dog or get another one. This will lead to issues. Get in the habit of putting your dog in the crate shut the door and feed them. If you are home pick up the bowl whether finished or not within the hour. Most will have been done long before that. If you are going out and crating feel free to leave the dog with the bowl.

A few spray bottles around the home are perfect for discipline. DO NOT HIT the dog!!!! Unless an extreme behavior happens. YOU must be the alpha. DO NOT LEAVE THE BOTTLES WHERE THEY CAN BE TAKEN AND CHEWED. The spray is good to use when you need to correct, such as begging, putting paws on counter, chewing something that shouldn't be chewed.

Your puppy was trained to use puppy pads. Initially the pad was put directly down on the floor. As the puppies mature they tend to have fun tearing up the pad. I have different types of training pad holders that I use. The holder needs to coincide with the correct size pad. There are various pads and holders on the market. Depending on your situation it is possible to continue using these as a backup or in bad weather.
